

1) English isn't an easy language, right? Especially when it comes words that, for us, has similar meanings. This is the case of TO and FOR. Watch this video here and complete the sentences with TO and FOR.

- a) She came to here by car.
- b) English is difficult for him to understand.
- c) What did you do to her? She's crying all day long...
- d) I did many things for her, but she never thanks me in return.
- e) You asked for help, and we came to help you
- f) She came crying to me. (she looked for me; she came towards me)
- g) She came crying for me . (I was the reason she was crying; she was crying because of me)

2) Dialogue Practice: Practice the following dialogues with yourself or with a partner. Listen to the corresponding audios to better pronounce the lines. Some dialogues have more than one option for answering, choose the one you prefer!

Dialogue 1: Do you know Jerry?

A: Hey there!

B: Hey, how are you doing?

A: I'm doing fine/well/great. How's by you?

B: Just fine! Do you know Jerry?

A: I'm not sure... How's he like?

B: He is tall, plump, and has short dark hair...

A: Oh, sorry... I can't remember him...

B: OK then...

Dialogue 2: Marital status

A: Hello!

B: Hi!

A: May I ask you what's your marital status?

B: Sure! I'm single/engaged/married/divorced. May I ask yours?

A: Certainly... I am single/engaged/married/divorced.

B: Do you have kids?

A: Yes I do./No, I do not. And you?

B: I have kids./I don't have kids.

Dialogue 3: Test Fail

A: I guess I'll fail in the test...

B: Why do you think so?

A: I didn't study enough, the subject is far complex and I am not in the mood for studying...

B: Well, in that case, you had better make an effort and study for real, otherwise you'll get an F...

A: Can you help me out with that? I'm really struggling with all those books...

B: You can bet on that, pal!

A: Right, chum!

Dialogue 4:

A: Good morning!

B: Good morning... What have you been up to?

A: Not much... How's by you?

B: The same... Do you have some money to lend me?

A: Yes... I can lend you some money... How much do you need?

B: Twenty bucks... Is that possible?

A: Sure! Here's it.

B: Thanks!

Dialogue 5: Formal Conversation

A: How do you do?

B: How do you do?

A: I am _____, I'm a sales manager at Ford Company.

B: That's good! I'm an architect at Buildings of America. My name is _____.

A: Would you like a cup of coffee? We have lots of things to discuss about.

B: Indeed! That'll be an honor!